

TMS and Biosound Therapy

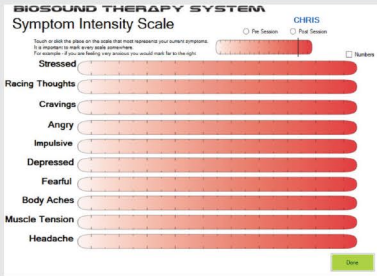

PROVEN RESULTS

Biosound Therapy goes hand in hand with TMS. Providers report that the calming effects of the vibrations, music and meditations help their patients relax, de-stress and relieve pain before or after their TMS appointment. To the right are the results of a clinical study of Biosound Therapy sessions.

For more information on our research, visit www.biosoundhealing.com/research

BIOSOUND OUTCOME DATA ANALYZER

The system includes Biosound's proprietary outcome data analyzer program. The program records and stores the patient self-assessments, pre and post session. The program captures the patient's intensity levels relative to the ten symptoms shown and stores them in their file, which may be accessed on the cloud based platform provided with the program. The program will correlate the percentage of improvement from pre to post session and collect age and gender data. The data may be exported to excel for documentation of the patient's symptom improvement throughout treatment and to quantify outcomes for research, marketing or other purposes.

Zero Gravity Adjustable Frame – Designed to deliver sound frequencies and deep, resonant vibrations without downward pressure on the spine, relieving muscle tension and back pain.

"There's tremendous benefit in using TMS and Biosound therapy for patients with depression and anxiety. The most obvious benefit for our patients is helping them to learn how to cope with symptoms of depression and anxiety. We also help them incorporate meditation and deep breathing into their daily lives. Biosound is great to use before a session, especially if the patient is nervous."

Britani H., The Healing House

www.biosoundhealing.com
sales@biosoundhealing.com | 888-495-1946